Introduction

In recent years U.S. Route 66 has become a popular historical-tourism destination for countless Americans and international travelers. This highway, which “runs from Chicago to L.A.,” has been singled out in the popular imagination as an icon representing American road culture and as a symbol of the freedom afforded by the automobile.

In response to this high degree of public interest, in 1999 an act of Congress resulted in the Route 66 Corridor Preservation Program, administered by the National Park Service. Among other activities, the program provides grants to the affected states for the identification and prioritization of Route 66 related resources.

In 2010, the Arizona State Historic Preservation Office was awarded such a grant, intended to fund a comprehensive survey of potential Route 66 resources in Arizona, from the California state line to the New Mexico state line.

Motley Design Group, teamed with SWCA Environmental Consultants, was retained to perform the survey. The bulk of the field survey was completed in four trips occurring between April, 2011 and August, 2011.

This report is a summary of the team’s findings.

Field Inventory

The initial inventory list was provided to the consultant team by the Arizona SHPO. SHPO staff created the initial list from a combination of windshield surveys and inventory data from prior surveys and National Register nominations. The initial list was refined by the project team in consultation with SHPO to eliminate duplicates and exclude properties that were remote from historic Route 66 alignments.

Field inventory by the consultants was preceded by intensive pre-planning in order to minimize on-site time. Each site on the SHPO listing was located on USGS maps and previewed using Google Maps, Google Streetview, and/or Mapquest to the extent possible. Aerial photographs were annotated with locations of target sites.

After all sites had been roughly located, inventory numbers were assigned to all target properties, generally ordered starting with #1 at the California line and proceeding east. Within cities and towns, the numbering varied slightly from a strict west-to-east regimen in order to group the properties more effectively in the field, particularly in those towns where the highway was split into one-way pairs. In some areas, particularly between urban centers, the inventory numbering is discontinuous due to the removal or combination of some properties from the initial listing

The field inventory was divided into four trips, each of three to six days duration, as follows:

- Trip #1: April 22-27, California line to (but not including) Flagstaff
- Trip #2: June 22-26, Holbrook to New Mexico line
- Trip #3: July 27-31, Winslow east to Holbrook
- Trip #4: August 22-24, Flagstaff east to Winslow

The inventory was conducted to Arizona SHPO standards using the Arizona Historic Property Inventory Form. All photographs were taken digitally.

Not unexpectedly, additional potential resources were encountered that were not on the initial SHPO listing. At SHPO's instruction, all non-residential properties found that occurred on historic Route 66 and appeared older than 1985 were considered. (An earlier cutoff date was used in instances where the highway is known to have been realigned prior to 1985.) Additional inventory numbers were assigned as these resources were encountered, starting with number 900.

Following the field work, the inventory was transcribed into a Microsoft Access database system. The use of Access was specified by SHPO. The project team elected to use Access 2007 (or later) version because of its improved ability to embed photographic information into the database. This is essential to avoid having to inefficiently paste up or merge photographs into the hard copy form output. Unfortunately, very large database files are the result. As a final product, we have provided the overall Route 66 in Arizona inventory split amongst four database files, divided geographically.

Historic Background Information

Each property was researched as to its date of construction and use during the period of significance (1926-1985) through a combination of field recording data, secondary and primary source material, photographic documentation and telephone inquiries.

Data from previous surveys and listed and draft National Register nominations informed much of the current inventory. Newly recorded resources were researched using both popular and scholarly books on Route 66. Information gleaned from non-scholarly books was employed when it could be verified through another source.

Informing much of the background on motels were commercial postcards, which provided data on building layout, number of rooms, amenities, owner and often manager, and, in some instances, the extent of remodeling or updating of a motel. To this end, postcard collections in books, personal holdings and online archives were consulted.

Some motels have had extensive advertising, allowing the researcher to trace the evolution of the business and its associated buildings. Acknowledging that postcards provide only a snapshot in time of a motel's appearance and amenities, the researcher selected postcard data that mostly closely reflected the resource recorded in the field.

For motels and other travel resources in Flagstaff, Williams, and Winslow, the researcher consulted interval years of a 50-year span of telephone books and city directories digitized and made available online through the Flagstaff Public Library. Equally, period magazines and travel guides were reviewed for information and advertisements on tourist attractions and related businesses. To a lesser extent, digital newspaper collections were consulted.

When no information could be found using these sources, the researcher made telephone inquiries to the local historical society, chamber of commerce, and/or directly to the current business.

Given the restricted character count of the inventory's entry field for this information, the developed background is not definitive.

National Register Status Determination

This survey includes recommendations on eligibility to the National Register of Historic Places for individual properties and districts. Our recommendations are limited to historic properties' relationship to defined Route 66 historic contexts. Historic contexts for Route 66 have been developed and documented in other studies. A Multiple Property Documentation Form for "Historic Route 66 in Arizona" has been completed and later updated (Cleeland, 1989, and Stein, 1996). An MPDF has also been developed nationally. We have relied on these sources in defining eligible property types.

The SHPO-standard Arizona Historic Property Inventory Form includes recommendations on National Register eligibility summarized in check-box format as:

- Previously listed (individually or in a district),

- Individually Eligible (or not),
- Eligible as part of a historic district (or not).

Recommendations for eligibility for this survey generally were made conforming to the following guidelines.

- Previously listed properties (where the project team was aware of their prior status) are marked with their status as Individually Listed or Listed as Contributor to a Historic District and no further recommendations are given, unless found to be demolished or to have lost integrity, in which case that fact is noted.
- Properties constructed 1985 or later (or later than the appropriate date for sections of Route 66 that were decommissioned earlier) are marked Not Individually Eligible and Not Eligible as a Contributor due to age.
- Properties that do not appear to meet typical National Register integrity criteria are marked Not Individually Eligible and Not Eligible as a Contributor due to integrity loss.
- All properties that are not directly related to the established Route 66 historic contexts (but met age and integrity tests) are marked “Need Additional Study” and “Not Route 66 Context” is marked in the REASON field. Surveyed properties placed in this category include the following:
 - Theatres
 - Bowling alleys
 - Railroad related resources including depots and other facilities
 - Warehouses
 - Industrial plants
 - Retail commercial buildings that were not known to be used as a café or curio shop
 - Banks
 - Office buildings
 - Post Offices, other public governmental buildings except for ADOT or ADPS offices
 - Meeting/fraternal halls
 - Churches
 - Residences and apartments
- Property types appearing in the national Route 66 MPDF context, listed below, were marked as “Individually Eligible” if they met age and integrity tests:
 - Highway and Road-Related Structures
 - Road Bridges
 - Gasoline/Service Stations
 - Garages/Dealerships
 - Diners/Cafes/Restaurants
 - Hotels/Campgrounds/Tourist Courts/Motels
 - Recreational/Travel Stops/Destinations
 - Roadside Parks/Picnic Areas
 - Road Support/Maintenance/Law Enforcement
 - Districts

Overview of Inventory

A total of 889 properties were inventoried. This includes 741 properties that were on the initial SHPO listing and 147 properties that were added during the course of the inventory.

365 properties were found to be potentially eligible to the National Register as individuals for their associations to Route 66 and not previously listed.

187 properties were found to have been constructed prior to 1985 and appeared to possess historic integrity, but which were not directly related to the Route 66 historic context. These properties are candidates for additional study under other survey efforts.

The remaining 225 properties were recommended not eligible due to age or loss of integrity.

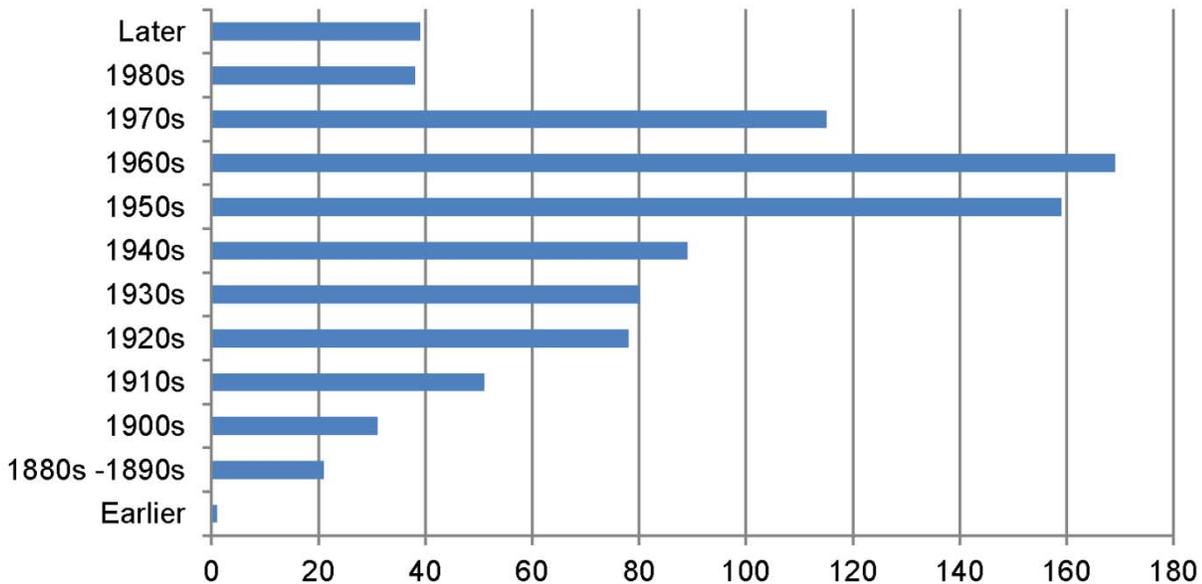

SUMMARY TOTALS

Statistical Breakdown and Trends Noted

Age Distribution

The majority of resources inventoried were post-WWII examples. Prewar buildings were encountered more rarely, with fewer being found in earlier brackets.

Building Types

The Inventory included building types in the following numbers. (Numbers are approximate and do not total up to the number of properties inventoried, in that some properties could be counted in multiple categories.)

Gas Stations/Repair Garages/Dealerships	206
Motels/Hotels	176
Restaurants/Taverns	118
Tourist-Related Retail	22
Engineering Structures	12
Museums	4
Sites, Objects	21
Non-Route 66 context resources	309

Trends

The inventory data revealed several trends that could be further researched through additional recordation, data gathering and comparative analysis.

The most evident of these is a long-term trend of expansion of lodging units, reflecting increased traffic patterns and changes in automobile design and traveling habits. It appears from an examination of period postcards that many motels—especially those in Kingman, Flagstaff, Winslow, and Holbrook—started as small U-shaped motor courts placed perpendicular to the highway, and automobiles were parked in individual carports. With a postwar increase in traffic volume, motel owners often built a separate integrated block of motel units (without carports) to meet the expanding tourist trade. This block was either added to the existing motor court or resulted in the demolition of earlier units. Starting in the 1950s, most motels were constructed as a plan of integrated one-story blocks arranged as a single block or forming an “L” or wide “U” of multiple blocks. To this, depending on the motel’s targeted market, were added amenities such as a pool, lawn, landscaped grounds, play area, or attached café. Later, with a trend to maximize space, a two-story block was added to one of the “arms” of the original and/or modified U-shaped forms. Many U-shaped motels recorded in the survey show a mixture of earlier one-story blocks, flanking a newer two-story block. Several surveyed motels reveal a multi-era evolution of expansion, often with a surviving 1920’s motor court unit attached to a later one-story block, with a separate modern two-story block to the side.

This trend of multi-era expansion could be further researched to determine how it compares statewide and with the evolution of motor accommodations in other Route 66 states.

Priorities for Future National Register Nominations

365 properties have been identified which are, in the opinion of the surveyors, eligible to the National Register of Historic Places under the Route 66 context, and which are not previously listed either as individuals or as contributors to a historic district. Some of these properties would be considered borderline as to their significance or integrity. Others are both highly significant and good, intact examples of their property types or of well developed architectural design.

We have divided the recommended-eligible properties into three priority categories: low, medium, and high, which are noted in the summary inventory table at the end of this document.

Low-priority properties are noted in the resource listing table as “Individually Eligible” but without further highlighting. Properties were placed in this classification for a number of reasons, including:

- Borderline historic integrity in one or more integrity categories
- Relatively common building type of uninteresting character
- Properties occurring within potential low-priority historic districts and not otherwise classified in a higher priority as an individual property

Medium-priority properties are noted in the resource listing table as “Individually Eligible” and are further highlighted with green shading. These are properties that were not classified as either low- or high-priority.

High-priority properties are noted in the resource listing table as “Individually Eligible” and are further highlighted with red shading. These properties were noted for being one or more of the following:

- Excellent example of its property type and strong Route 66 character
- Particularly rare property due to age, type, construction, or architectural style
- Properties additionally significant under NR Criteria B, C, or D
- Good, intact properties which appear endangered due to deterioration or redevelopment
- Properties occurring within potential high priority historic districts (see below)

Potential Historic Districts

In addition to being individually eligible to the National Register, a number of properties occurred in groups or collections which appear to form potential historic districts. Areas which may deserve consideration include:

HIGH PRIORITY; Strong Route 66 associations, good overall integrity:

Hackberry: The site consists of inventory numbers 167-170, and includes a store, motel, café, and minor accessory structures in a rural setting.

Truxton: The hamlet of Truxton once served auto travelers with gas stations, restaurants, and motels. Now largely abandoned, the site is owned by the Hualapai Indian tribe. Inventory numbers 175-177 and 903-908 comprise 9 potential contributing properties.

Park Motel (Grand Canyon Caverns): This site (#185) was inventoried as a single property, but includes motel, restaurant, gas station, and site features spread across a large area.

Pine Springs: Located on the western fringe of Flagstaff, this abandoned site on State land was once a tourist stop and includes a motel, gas station, restaurant, and storage/warehouse buildings in deteriorating condition. Inventory numbers 1029-1033 are included. The district might also be stretched to include the Trail Riders Motel (Woody Mountain Campground), #292, which lies across the highway.

Two Guns: Inventoried as numbers 429 and 430, this potential district flanks Canyon Diablo where it is crossed by the historic Route 66 alignment. The site includes a gas station, campground, concrete bridge, and numerous stone ruins of an early tourist stop.

LOW PRIORITY; partial Route 66 associations, lesser historic integrity:

Ash Fork: Inventory numbers 207-228 and 918-923 include many older properties, some directly related to Route 66 contexts and others not. The question of whether or not a historic district is feasible in this town deserves further study.

Joseph City: Route 66 was Main Street through Joseph City, and there are numerous commercial buildings along its route, many related to the Route 66 context. Several tourist-related sites are located on the western edge of town, in deteriorating condition. Inventory numbers 965 through 980 are potential contributors.
